WITH THE SPRING.

How sharp the spires upon the hill!
They rise against the sunset sky
Like masts of ships, that sailing past
A sea of flame, now anchored lie.

But lo! a pilgrim in the path,
That dimly traced along the ground,
Through orchard, meadow, pastures bare,
Winds upward to the hilltop town.

Ah, what is life save just a path,
A hasty walk for only one,
And childhood, manhood, age, are fields
Between us and the setting sun.

That toiling traveler gains the hill,
He weary walks the village through;
And now he seems amid the clouds,
As if to heaven an angel flew!

O bless the life that holy here
Beyond the ridge of death has passed,
A shaded footpath now, but merged
In everlasting light at last.

A Fall For Life.

The merchant ship Druid, from Bombay for London, lay becalmed off the west coast of Hindostan, between Goa and Mangalore, where the Ghauts Mountains were seen, towering in savage grandeur thousands of feet in air, with wild torrents leaping down the rocks, flashing through the dark green shrubbery, and rushing with the din of thunder.

'If the wind does not rise before to-morrow morning we will have to anchor,' said the captain to Robert Winfield, a handsome young naval lieutenant on leave of absence from the frigate stationed at Bombay. 'I don't want to lay the ship's bones on the coast, nor do I like to get too near it. I have heard bad stories of the natives there; at any rate, I believe that almost every Hindoo is a thief and murderer by nature.'

Bell Upton, daughter of Major Upton, who was on his way home from his India regiment, on sick leave, heard the words, and, shuddering, drew closer to her invalid father.

A quick glance was exchanged between her and the young naval lieutenant, whose reassuring look seemed at once to dispel her fears.

Major Upton, noticing the glance, frowning, said to his daughter, 'Come, Bell, let us go below.'

Winfield had been a suitor of Bell's since she came to visit her father at Bombay, some months before. The girl favored him, but not so the major, who wanted her to choose a wealthy lover.

Bell was beautiful, with a form of unrivaled grace, brown eyes, a clear, pearl-white skin, with little color, and dark golden hair that fell in rippling masses over a pair of magnificent shoulders. The lieutenant watched her admiringly until she disappeared in the cabin.

'No harm shall befall her, not while I live,' he thought, as he now glanced uneasily towards the coast. 'We have arms aboard, have we not?' he added aloud to the captain.

'Ay, ay, sir; but it is not likely we shall be attacked. We are full two leagues from the coast, and before we are near enough to be boarded a breeze will spring up, I have no doubt.'

A few hours later night closed around the ship. The sky was covered by thick clouds which obscured the moon and seemed to betoken that a breeze would spring up before long.

Meanwhile the ship having drifted a league nearer the coast, the lieutenant thought the captain very careless not to have more than his one lookout posted for ward on so dark a night.

Before eleven o'clock the quarter-deck was deserted by all save the officer of the watch, a lazy fellow who was now stretched on the carpenter's chest, half asleep, while the watch for ward, as Winfield (who stood leaning over the rail amidships) could perceive by the light of a lantern in the fore rigging, lay reclining on the hatch, some of them snoring.

Not feeling sleepy, the lieutenant resolved to go aloft on the mizzen topsail yard and watch for the first sign of a breeze. Arrived on the yard, the gloom was so intense that he could not see the waters below, although he still gazed in that direction. Was it reality or imagination? He thought he could detect the dim outline of something shooting around the ship's stern.

He was about descending, when, the moon parting the clouds, a flood of silvery light was poured down on the ship and water, revealing a sight that filled the young man with horror—a scene so sudden and unexpected that his heart seemed to stand still.

While he was aloft Bell Upton had come out on the quarter deck, and now stood with her back to the rail, about two feet from it, her head bowed as if in deep thought, so that her beautiful white face shone like polished ivory in the bright moonlight. Then unseen, unheard by the young girl, a Hindoo, with a long lithe body naked to the waist, had clambered up the side from a large canoe containing a half-dozen of his companions, and had contrived to glide, serpent-like, on the outside of the ship until he had gained a position directly behind her, when he drew a large dirk, which he was now on the point of plunging into the snowy neck of the fair passenger, that she might not give an alarm!

The lieutenant's hand clenched the yard like a vise, as he beheld the young lady's peril. He must save her—he would save her, he thought; yet, how was it to be done? To give an alarm would only hasten the girl's doom; to descend, no matter how quickly, by means of one of the backstays, would be of no use, as she must perish before he could reach the deck and attempt to stay the deadly hand.

There was no time to lose. In three seconds the dirk would descend, and the girl would be killed at one stroke, so that the murderer's companions, who had already begun to ascend the vessel's side, could pounce on the drowsy male occupants of the deck, and, slaying them, make themselves masters of the ship almost before a warning could be given.

Like a lightning flash, the instinct of love, the resolution to save Bell in some way from his immediate attack, sent a sudden thought through the brain of the agonized spectator.

The Hindoo murderer, in his position on the outside of the ship, was under the yard, although about forty feet below him, while the girl, standing two feet from the rail, was within easy reach of the native, whose arm and body, as already stated, were drawn back from the bulwarks to give force to the meditated blow. The young man, therefore, deemed it would be an easy matter to reach the Hindoo in the only way it could now be done with sufficient rapidity to prevent the accomplishment of his deadly purpose—a way at once novel and desperate, and which would, perhaps, involve his own destruction.

In a word, not hesitating to risk life or limb for the woman he loved, Lieutenant Winfield resolved to drop down from near the end of the mizzen topsail yard upon the Hindoo, forty feet below, and thus dash him from the rail into the sea, perhaps killing himself, ere he could deal the fatal blow with the uplifted dirk. He would utter a shrill cry—a warning to the crew—as he cleaved the air, thus rousing them, perhaps, in time to meet the attack of the robbers, and ensure the further safety of Bell and the ship.

The emergency admitted of no delay. The young man, clutching the yard-arm near the end, hung by it a second to make sure he was in a line with the Hindoo beneath, then, just as the dirk was about to deseend, he let go of the spar with a long, wild cry that pierced every corner of the ship, and down he went, cleaving through the air with terrible velocity. There was a whirling, rushing sound, then a loud thud as the heavy boot-heels of the falling body crushed upon the head of the native ere he could use his knife, dashing him from the rail into the sea, and killing him instantly.

The watch heard the warning cry of the lieutenant, and before the other natives could recover from their surprise at the occurrence which had so suddenly and unexpectedly broken upon them, the decks were alive with the whole crew, and the entire gang of robbers beat a hasty retreat.

Meanwhile Bell Upton had been so bewildered by that sudden, fearful cry she had heard, and the subsequent splash of the bodies in the water, then not until the boat was lowered and the lieutenant, who had been struggling in the sea, was brought aboard and into the cabin, to explain in a faint voice how he had saved her life, did she clearly comprehend all that had happened. Then she threw herself down by the prostrate form of her lover, and hung over him in agony, fearing that he was fatally injured. Soon, however, the doctor gave cheering information to the contrary.

The young man had sustained a fearful shock from his contact with the Hindoo's body, but as that body had offered little resistance to his downward progress when he struck it, being simply driven before him into the sea, his lower limbs, although partially paralyzed for the time, were not broken. He had, however, fallen dangerously near to the rail. A roll of the ship to the other side, ere he could let go of the topsail yard to descend, would have caused him to fall on the bulwarks, when, of course, he would have been killed.

'Never before,' said the doctor, 'did I hear of such a daring performance.'

'Ay!' exclaimed Major Upton, 'God bless him! Here, Bell, he shall have you girl, for he has earned you.'

He put both hands of his daughter in the lieutenant's, and turned his head away to hide a few tears upon his bronzed cheek.

Immediately after the young man had been brought aboard, an off-shore breeze sprang up, enabling the captain to head seaward. In due time the vessel reached her home port, when the lieutenant, who by this time had fully recovered from the effects of his fall, claimed his beautiful and willing bride.

Cutting Hard Steel with Soft Iron.

About forty years ago, having heard that hard steel could be cut readily with a circular disk of sheet iron when driven at a high motion, I made a disk about ten inches in diameter out of a piece of heavy stove-pipe iron, having a round eye at the center about one and a half inches in diameter. I then put a stick of hard wood in the turning lathe, turned it off true, making a wooden mandrel for holding this iron disk, just as a circular saw is held on a metallic mandrel. The periphery of the disk, after it was secured to the wooden mandrel in the lathe, was ground and filed until it would run as true as a millstone. The disk was secured to the collar or shoulder of the wooden mandrel by putting four screws through the disk into the wood. While the disk was revolving at a high motion the soft sheet iron would cut off a ten inch cold steel file in a few seconds. After we were satisfied that soft iron would cut cold and hard steel (no matter how hard), the disk was put on one of the journals of a circular saw which was driven at a very high motion; and that disk was employed for many years afterward to gum saws of all sizes.

A Sensible Wife.

"How extravagant, Eugene!" said little Nettie Hollis, one Saturday night, to her husband, as he stalked into the living room, loaded down by the weight of his purchases.

"Wait and see first, love," he answered, lightly. "After you know what I have bought, you will not have that opinion Look at this," holding up to her view an elegant pattern of a new silk dress. "What do you think of that, my beauty?"

Now most women would have shown their approbation and pleasure in the warmest manner; but not so Mrs. Hollis.

"Why, my old one that I was married in, is good yet. Why did you buy this when times are so hard? And only yesterday I heard you say that the shop would have to suspend operations for a few months soon."

"I know dear; but you have worn that dress ever since we were married, nearly a year. It is time, I think, that you had a new one."

"But the times!"

"Oh, bother the times! We have the lease of this little house for a year and I guess we can live through it somehow; besides our credit is good to an unlimited extent."

"Well, love, it is a nice present," said Mrs. Hollis, holding the shimmering fabric to the light.

But no supremely satisfied look passed across her face, and shortly afterwards the dress was put away with a sigh.

Eugene Hollis, like thousands of other young men working on a salary, had married the woman of his choice, and settled down into a staid, sober, home-loving man. He was open-hearted by nature, and delighted to see his little wife look well, though he had to run in debt for it.

Now, though he knew it not, this said wife was a perfect little heroine, and well worth her weight in gold. The time came shortly afterwards, that both had feared; the shop had closed for a few weeks, which time run into months and still no signs of work. People that Eugene had traded with sold out in disgust, while strangers filled their places. With them credit was an impossibility, and Eugene Hollis soon had the mortification of being reduced to his last penny.

It was high time that something should be done, or the little woman he had vowed to shield from all harm would suffer.

To this end he went through the city, and in o every imaginable place where there was a likelihood of earning an honest living.

But hundreds were there before him, and one evening about dusk found him wending his way, foot-sore and weary, towards home. He brought no money nor provisions with him, for the last penny he had was paid out a week before.

But what a contrast he found in the happy, contented face of his wife to his own despairing condition.

"Come, love, supper is ready; sit down at once, before it gets cold," she said, kindly, noticing from the woe-begone look that he had not succeeded.

"Supper! What can we make supper of, except the imagination that one ought to be?" was the morose remark.

"Oh, there is the ham that you purchased the other day, and then the potatoes are not out yet," she smilingly said "Besides, there are enough left for several meals."

Eugene thought a good deal, but said nothing; he was quite positive that the last potato had gone a week before. But his wife kept right on talking as merrily as if they had a house full of plenty instead of want. So he mentally decided that she had received a loan from some relative, which fact she wished to keep to herself.

So matters went on day after day, but still no work or signs of work. There were others in the same condition as Eugene, so he had the comfort of knowing he was not alone in his woe.

He always went away at the usual working hour, and spent the time hunting in the cheerless round after work; but when he came back again at night, his wife always met him the same as ever.

It had become an established fact in his mind that outside help of some kind was provided for them in sufficient amount to keep them from starving.

The bacon never ran quite short or the potatoes either, for that matter, and they were relieved now and then by a steak or chop.

He was too proud to take any notice of this strange fact outwardly, and his little wife never meant that he should, always changing the subject if it came up in their conversations, leading him to believe that some well to-do uncle whom he had never heard of, was at the bottom of it.

But this state of affairs was not to last always. When a man is honest and sober, and is willing to do anything, he is capable of doing, a streak of sunshine in the shade of success is sure to crown his efforts at last.

Eugene Hollis, at his trade as an engraver, was a skilled workman in every branch, and in fair times commanded a good salary.

He now felt himself in luck when the position to drive a coal cart at three shillings per day was offered him.

"Good news! Good news!" he shouted, rushing into his home, and searching for his wife.

Where was she? The rooms were deserted. But no, the attic door was open. Through it he went, and up the short flight of stairs. There sat Nettie, patiently and rapidly propelling a sewing machine under the light from the narrow panes let into the sloping roof.

"Why, Nettie, where did you get that?" he asked, completely taken aback at the discovery.

"I bought it, love," was the hesitating response.

"I did not know we had money enough to buy a sewing machine, dear."

"Do you remember that silk dress you bought me a long time ago—just before the shop closed?"

"Why certainly."

"Well, one day Mrs. Morse called up to see me, and fell in love with it. When she found I would sell it at a much lower figure than the pattern could be purchased for at the linen-draper's she offered to take it. So you see I had enough money to buy this machine, with which I have found more or less work to do ever since."

"Nettie, my noble little wife! So you sacrificed your own new dress for me, the giver! I am not worthy of you, my price less jewel! I am not worthy of you!"

Then the strong man's feelings gave way, and his voice failed him.

"This shall never happen again, Nettie," he said at last, joyfully. "I have obtained work now that will last until the shop opens. Then you shall be my banker; for I am satisfied you will take care of my wages much better than I can."

That night new projects for the future were formed—a future, smoother than the past had been.

Deer and Daniel Webster.

In the winter of 1843-44 deer were quite plenty in Plymouth woods. Daniel Webster was then at Marshfield. Word was sent to him that the Kingston gang was going on a deer hunt the day before Thanksgiving, with an invitation for him to join us, and all were to meet at the old flaxing place at Smelt Pond at sunrise, sharp. By 8 o'clock his Honor appeared with a gentleman friend; and Samuel and Waldo F., Uncle Thomas B. and my father and myself. We all had old-fashioned king's arms, percussioned, except Mr. Webster and his friend, who had double guns. It was a fine frosty morning, and our party lively. We had two good hounds. Samuel and Waldo were to take the hounds and drive Watson's valley. Uncle Tom was to drive over and take Nick's Rock stand. The rest of us were to hurry over to the Carver road and to string out at the guide-board crossing. We had scarcely reached our places before we heard the welcome voices of the hounds in full cry, and soon the thundering echoes of two king's arms at the head of Watson's valley, and then echoing down the valley came "Whoop-oh-whoop-oh! Look out, look out!" The hounds were coming directly towards us. I soon detected something coming down the blind road at my right, and when within forty yards it stopped behind a bush. I shot at the fellow I saw, when almost immediately two deer came out of the bushes at my left and crossed the road within a few yards of me. My father, who stood on my right, and Mr. Webster and friend, who stood at my left, all fired, and one deer fell. I ran into the woods where I had shot, and, not finding anything, returned, to find that Mr. Webster and friend had jumped into their wagon and run their horses to West Pond road to intercept the other deer at the crossing, as the dogs had gone in the track of the other. Father advised me to hurry on and he would stay there with the dead deer, and wait for Sam and Waldo to come up. Uncle Tom had come up and kept on in his carriage toward West Pond, and while he was driving the deer came within gunshot, and he shot at it from his wagon. I, hearing the dogs, hurried back. The deer jumped into the road some ninety yards off and we all fired. The deer fell, but gained his feet and bounded away, falling at every jump. Rounding up the road we all chased it except father, who reloaded, and, running the old mare, overtook and shot the deer. We now had a joyful lunch, washing it down with something good from Mr. Webster's lunch basket. Then we concluded to start for home, as it was about 2 o'clock. We decided that Mr. Webster and his friend had shot the buck, and my father had shot the doe. Mr. Webster gave us $1 each, and he and his friend took the buck, which was a nice one, and father gave the other two men fifty cents each and took the doe, as three of us were at my father's. I, feeling a little dissatisfied at my first shot, took one of the hounds and went up the blind road where I first shot. The hound, snuffling around, soon found a large red fox, dead within ten feet of where I shot at him. We now took our belis from our wagon boxes and returned home jingling, as was the custom, if successful.

The Amazon.

Dr. Fletcher recently delivered an interesting lecture on the Amazon river and its valley. He said, perhaps, all things considered, the valley of the Amazon, with its virgin forests, its mighty rivers, and its happy clime 'where eternal summer dwells,' is the most interesting portion of our globe betwixt 'Cancer' and 'Capricorn.' Dr. Fletcher took his audience up the majestic stream which the Tamoyo Indians called the 'king of waters,' and to which the civilized world gives the misnomer of the 'Amazon,' or, as in the Portuguese and Spanish languages, 'the river of the Amazons.' Dr. Fletcher gave a rapid sketch of the discovery of the river in 1542, by Orellana, an officer under Gonzalo Pizarro, who descended the river from Peru to the Atlantic, and encountering the Indians dressed in full war costume thought they were women-warriors, hence the misnomer. The fabled story of the city of the El Dorado, or gilded king, was narrated along with other incidents of history. Dr. Fletcher gave much information concerning the physical features of the great valley, how the trade winds give a constant supply of water which fills the vast system of rivers. There are more than 20,000 miles of steamboat navigation below and above all falls. The building of a railroad around the rapids of the river Madeira gives steam navigation into the heart of Bolivia. The gentle declivity of the main stream is remarkable, only an inch to the mile, which, the lecturer remarked, 'makes it the finest steamboat river in the world.'

The size of the valley is astonishing. It covers two-thirds of Brazil, three-fourths of Bolivia, two thirds of Peru, three-fourths of Ecquador, and one-third of the States of Colombia. Its area is more than twice that of the valley of the Mississippi, and is equal to that of the United States minus the states of California and Oregon, and Washington Territory. Alfred R. Wallace, the English traveler, says that more people can be supported in the valley of the Amazon than in any other equal space upon our globe. The climate is not extreme. In three visits to the Amazon Dr. Fletcher never found the thermometer indicating higher than 87 degrees Fahrenheit. Everything that can be cultivated in the tropics can be produced there, while the spontaneous productions of this region, in the shape of India rubber, sarsaparilla, ipecacuana, copaiva, vanilla, Brazil nuts, cabinet and dye woods, are inexhaustible. Only the narrow spirit of the Portuguese, which excluded all other than their own subjects until within the first quarter of this century, kept this region uninhabited. Ever now that vast valley has not a half million inhabitants, but it is waking up under the broad policy of the present emperor.

Curiosities of Ice.

In 1850 Mr. Faraday discovered that two pieces of ice placed in contact froze together almost instantly. Mr. Tyndall says, "One hot summer day I entered a shop on the Stand; in the window fragments of ice were lying in a basin. The tradesman gave me permission to take the pieces of ice in my own hand; holding the first piece I attached all the other pieces in the basin to it. The thermometer was then sixty degrees, and yet all the pieces were frozen together. "In this way Mr. Tyndall formed a chain of ice. This experiment may be made even in hot water. Throw two pieces of ice in a pail full of almost boiling water, keep them in contact and they will freeze together in despite of the high temperature. Mr. Faraday made an other experiment of the same sort. He threw into a vessel full of water several small pieces of ice. They floated on the surface of the water. The moment one piece touched another there was an instantaneous retreezing. Attraction soon brought all the pieces in contact, so that in an instant an ice-chain was formed.

An ice wheel turning on a surface of ice refreezes at the point of contact; during the rotation a series of cracks are heard which show the ear that successive refreezings are constantly taking place. The phenomenon of refreezing is easily explained. At the surface of a piece of ice the atoms, which are no longer in equilibrium on the outside, tend to leave their neighbors, as happens in boiling or evaporation. Melting ensues. But if two pieces of ice are brought together the atoms on the surface are restored to their equilibrium, the attractive action becomes what it was, the atoms resume their relations with their neighbors and juxtaposition ensues. In consequence of this property ice is endowed with singular plasticity. A rope and a knot or buckle made be made of ice. It may be molded. The school boy who fills his hands with snow and compresses it into a ball produces the phenomenon of refreezing, and forms an ice ball sufficiently hard to be a dangerous projectile.

This explains the extraordinary rigidity of the bridges of snow which are often seen in the Alps suspended over deep crevices. The Alpine guides, by cautiously walking on these snowy masses, freeze the particles together and transform the snow into ice. If snow be compressed in molds, ice statuettes may be obtained. Fill a hollow ball with snow, pressed in as hard as possible, and you may obtain ice balls admirably translucid. Nothing would be easier than to dine with a service made of molded snow—plates, glasses, decanters, all of snow. A gentleman in Paris recently served sherry wine to his friends before a hot fire in beakers made of snow. Snow compressed in this way does not melt so rapidly as might be thought. Ice requires a great deal of heat before it melts. A layer of ice often becomes a protection against cold. If you would prevent anything from sinking to a temperature below thirty-two degrees during the very severest frosts, we know you have but to wrap it in wet rags. The process of freezing gives to the environing bodies all the heat necessary to destroy it. The water in the rags slowly forms small pieces of ice on the rag, and in the meantime disengages heat, which warms the object wrapped in the rags.

A tree wrapped in rags, or in moss saturated with water, does not freeze even when the thermometer is several degrees below the freezing point. The slowness with which ice melts is well known. During the winter 1740 the Czar built at St. Petersburg a magnificent palace of ice, which lasted several years. Since then cannons have been loaded with balls and fired. They were fired ten times without bursting. It is consequently indisputable that ice melts slowly, and may be turned to good account in the polar regions. In Siberia the windows have panes of ice. The remarkable property with which particles of ice are endowed of molding themselves into different shapes by refreezing easily explains how glaciers make their way through narrow gorges and expand in valleys. The ice is broken into fragments which refreeze whenever they touch.

Bedlam.

The term "Bedlam" so often applied to lunatic asylums, is merely a corruption of Bethelehem, a hospital of that name having been set apart in London three centuries ago for the treatment of such patients. It need hardly be mentioned that insanity is a disease due to high mental cultivation. In Scotland the proportion is one to 563, while in England, where there is less culture, it is one to 788. In our own country it is one to 750. It is never found, however, among barbarians. There are but few lunatics in India, and in countries deprived of political liberty, such as Italy and Austria, the proportion is very small. Among the more noted instances may be mentioned George III., whose mind was disordered during the last thirty years of his life. Dr. Brown, former superintendent of the Bloomingdale (New York) Asylum, became a victim of the disease which he was treating, and the constant study of insanity led to his own mental wreck. Horace Greeley's case is too well known to require detail. Gerrit Smith, the famous philanthropist, was at one time deranged, and was during this attack an inmate of the Utica Asylum. James Otis, the revolutionary patriot, became deranged in his latter days, and while in this condition, was killed by a stroke of lightning. American statesmen have been remarkably exempt from this calamity.

A Shrewd Cat.

A gentleman who took a trip into the country yesterday, when on the plains a mile from any house, noticed a cat, a huge one, almost as large as a fair-sized dog. It was lying upon the ground, its feet uppermost in such a way that he had no doubt that it had fallen a victim to some vicious dog. Around it feeding unsuspectingly, was a flock of young birds. The apparently lifeless cat was within range of the vision of the observer for some time, and just as he was thinking how much easier it would be for the animal to feign death and catch a bird by deceiving it than by slipping up to it, he was astonished to see the cat suddenly roll over and grab one of the feathered tribe that was very near. The other birds flew away a hundred yards or so and alighted. The cat only made one or two mouthfuls of the game, and then crept around to the windward of the birds, laid itself out again, and once more successfully played the dead dodge. The gentleman drove away without seeing how many birds it took to satisfy the feline.

Treed by a Bear.

Mr. Field and Mr. Safenbery started down to Mancos, Colorado, to locate some farms, and having selected our choice we went over to the hedge of the valley to look for house timber, where we encountered a herd of deer. I had not gone over a thousand yards when a great big bear track caught my gaze, which made my hair stand straight on end. I cannot explain to you how I looked, but can assure you had that bear seen me just then I should never have got a look at him, to say nothing about a shot. However, I wanted to see and shoot a grizzly, and forgetting all about the deer and my friend, I followed the track and did not go over half a mile when I spied Bruin resting under a tree. I was within five hundred yards of him. I fired, but missed him. He got up and ran off. This made me a little more courageous and induced me to follow on. I had traveled about two miles and was just entering a large patch of small cedars when I saw him walking leisurely about a hundred yards ahead of me. This was my time. I was just in the act of firing when he heard me, stopped and looked around at me, as though to better receive the contents of my rifle, which told with good effect as you will see. As soon as I had fired he turned and made for me. I tried to get another cartridge into the rifle, but could not do it quick enough, so realizing my danger I made for a tree which tried to climb with rifle in hand, but being unable to do this I was obliged to drop it. I had got up the tree about eight feet, when he passed under it at the rate of about 20 miles an hour, and having lost sight of me returned and took the trail that I came in on. As he passed the tree the second time I could see the blood oozing from his right side which left a crimson mark on the snow, and knew from this that he was badly wounded By this time I was about thirty feet up the tree and felt much better. When he got out of sight I descended from my place of refuge to follow on again, but being just a little bit scared I did not like to venture alone, so I returned to the place where I left my friend, whom I found sitting on a large deer, which he had shot, waiting for me. Having lost all his cartridges I told him briefly of what had transpired, and arming himself with a small axe, we both took the trail. We did not travel far from the scene of conflict until we saw Mr. Grizzly reposing under a tree. As soon as he saw us he made a bold charge at us which compelled both of us to climb a tree in quick order, though this time I succeeded in taking my rifle. He did not come all the way and was on the point of turning when a well-aimed bullet from my rifle entered his head and killed him. We hauled him home with a horse, where the boys took off his skin. I never saw any kind of meat so fat—it was just like pork. He dressed nearly six hundred pounds, the largest bear killed here for many years.

Bone Cave.

Prof. Leidy, in company with Dr. Porter of Easton, Penn., visited in August last Hartman's cave, near Stroudsville, Penn., on the invitation of D. T. Paret of that place, and examined a number of interesting animal and other remains which were found there. The cave is partly filled with a bed of clay 10 feet deep, on which rests a thin layer of stalagmite, and on this about a foot of black, friable earth mingled with animal and vegetable remains. The cave appears to have been too small to be inhabited by the larger carnivora, and no large entire bones of them were found, but about half a bushel of fragments and splinters of limb bones of smaller and large animals have been collected, many of which exhibit marks of having been gnawed, whether by rodents or small carnivora Prof. Leidy does not assume to decide. Some of the splinters are derived from such large and strong bones that it is questionable whether even the largest carnivora could have produced them, and are presumed to be remnants of human feasts, in which the bones were crushed to obtain the marrow. A few of the bones are somewhat charred, among them a small fragment of a bison's jaw with a molar tooth. Most of the bones are of species still living, but some of them, as the jaws of the reindeer, bison and wood-rat, are of animals no longer belonging to the fauna of the state; and a few, as the teeth of the Castoroides Ohioensis and the jaws of a young peccary, are of extinct animals. None of the remains have been identified as positively pertaining to our domestic animals unless two of the teeth may be those of a foetal or new-born horse. The vegetable remains include a few small fragments of charcoal and seeds of dogwood, pig-nut and walnut. Remains of human work were found—a large stone, celt of hard brown slate, from the bone earth some distance within the cave—fine bone awls, some of them gnawed; the prong of an antler, worked so as to be barbed on one side; a needle of bone resembling a crochet needle, a fish hook of bone, and a cone shell, of a species found on the western coast of Central America, bored through the axis as a head.

"Put on Petticoats."

The Indian custom is to butcher prisoners taken in battle. Such, however, was not the practice of Tecumseh, the great chief, who, as an ally of the British, fought against us in the war of 1812. He hated the Americans, but he fought as a warrior, not as a Thug.

In 1813, Col. Dudley, while attempting to relieve Fort Meigs, where Gen. Harrison was besieged by British and Indians, was defeated with great slaughter. As usual the Indians began killing the American prisoners. Gen. Procter, the British commander, looked coolly on and made no effort to restrain them.

Suddenly a voice sounded like a clap of thunder, and Tecumseh, mounted on a foaming horse, dashed among the butchers. Two Indians were in the act of killing a prisoner. Springing from his horse, Tecumseh seized one Indian by the throat and the other by the breast and threw them to the ground.

Drawing tomahawk and scalping-knife, he dared any Indian to touch another prisoner. A chief disobeyed, and Tecumseh brained him with his tomakawk. The Indians sullenly desisted

"What will become of my Indians?" he exclaimed. Then, turning to Procter, who stood near, he sternly demanded why he had not put a stop to the massacre.

"Your Indians cannot be commanded," replied the General.

"Go away! You are not fit to command. Put on petticoats!" was the scornful reply.

P. GRAY MEEK.
Bellefonte, Pa., Feb 1. Chairman

Democratic County Committee Meeting.

A meeting of the Democratic County Committee will be held at the Bush House, Bellefonte, on Tuesday, April 26th, at 2 o'clock, p. m., at which it is earnestly hoped every member of the committe will be present. The apportionment of delegates to the different districts for the ensuing two years will be made, and other matters of importance to the party will be considered.

P. GRAY MEEK,
Chairman.

Senator Don Cameron says that "no nobler, better or more patriotic body of men than the Pennsylvania legislature could be found in the world." That is putting it on thick and heavy and ought to settle the matter most effectually, and yet there are lots of people just wicked and perverse enough to believe quite the contrary.

Gen. James B. Weaver, of Iowa, the Greenback candidate for President, will make a speech in Bellefonte, on the 30th inst. Just what Greenback speeches are good for at this particular time we are not able to say, but suppose the illustrious general will be able to tell. Guess there will be a free admission.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C., April 16, '81.

Except Mahone, Riddleberger and George C. Gorham, I think every one is glad there is a prospect of the Senate going temporarily into the business of confirming persons nominated for office by the President. Many Republicans are anxious to dispose of certain important nominations, and an agreement will probably be reached next week to take up certain specified ones. The Democratic Senators will not object. Of course, after this necessary work is over the Republicans can resume their attempt to elect Riddleberger and Gorham. No law can prevent that. The interest in the election of such men, however, will be small after attention has been for a time drawn from it to other subjects. The Republicans know they are not fighting for any principle, and most of them realize the fact that Gorham and Riddleberger are not names that carry strength with them in the North. After the probable confirmations, then, there is likely to be some further arrangement by which the contest may be practically dropped now and resumed in December.

Most encouraging reports come from owners of six per cent. bonds as to the 3½ per cent. proposition of Secretary Windom. Owners of five per cent. bonds redeemable this summer, believing they will soon be called upon in a similar way, have (some of them) written to the Secretary expressing a willingness to have their bonds extended at the lower rate. The plan is, then, an assured success. Of its good results, especially if Congress shall be induced to forego at its next session the passage of a 3 per cent. funding bill, there is room for doubt. The National banks are large holders of these redeemable bonds and they get from the Secretary a higher interest than Congress proposed and the celebrated "fifth section" of the late refunding bill is not put in force. They will fight as earnestly against such a bill next winter as they did last winter, and public sentiment will not be as strongly in favor of a bill at 3 per cent. Now that interest has been or is about to be reduced, I fear the Secretary's unauthorized "compromise" has made the passage of a 3 per cent. bill impossible. This whole subject will, however, have full discussion as soon as Congress meets. I am surprised that it has not had some attention during debate in the last week of the Senate's very wayward session.

The President grows in personal popularity here, notwithstanding the rather rigid rules he has thought it necessary to adopt as to the reception of visitors. There are numberless stories about the influence this or that man has with him, but they are laughed at. They were true enough of Grant, who, except on rare occasions, liked to have trouble taken off his hands, and of Hayes, who, though always ready to do all that became his position, had a constitutional inability in the matter of making up his mind. But they are not true about Garfield.

CARROLL.

It is thought that every Ohio man expects an office under the Garfield administration except those who are in the penetentiaries.

THE WORK OF WATER.

Thousands of People Rendered Homeless.

YANKTON, Dak., April 12.—The overflowed water of the Missouri is gradually subsiding, though the ice is piled to a height of from ten to thirty feet along the bank and on the bars and bottom. Yankton is filling up with refugees from the low lands, and the people are doing their best to care for them. Outside help is needed, however, as the resources of the citizens are not adequate to the demands of the thousands of people rendered homeless. All these people possessed was swept away. Nearly all the stock on the low lands, hundreds of thousands of head, was drowned. The farm houses and villages are submerged or floating about in the water. On the site of Green Island of the twenty houses but one remains, and there the ice is from ten to twenty feet deep. The bottom from here to the Big Sioux, sixty miles long and from five to twenty miles wide, is still under water.

Yankton parties are still out in yawls bringing in the people. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad runs over this bottom, though the track is under water, it being the only means of communication with the outside. The steamers Terry and Far West are afloat and in good condition. The losses to property in general cannot now be estimated, but they must be very great. The flood season has only began, as the entire Missouri slope is buried in snow.

Yankton is almost destitute of fuel and coal oil and short of provisions. This fact, with the continued winter weather, adds to the suffering among the homeless families who have been drowned out. The city can furnish shelter for about one thousand, and is making great efforts to supply clothing, fuel and provisions from its limited store.

As soon as the gorge breaks boats can be sent below for supplies. All the railroads west of Yankton are snowed in. The damage to steamboat property will amount to $50,000, including two boats sunk—the Western and the Santeeville. The steamers Nellie Peck, Belle Helena, Black Hills, Josephine, Rosebud, Meal and Big Horn, are all lying high and dry up on the ice and far inland. They are damaged to the extent of $30,000, but will be put afloat as soon as the weather will permit, probably inside of thirty days.—Patriot.

A DEATH-DEALING TORNADO.

It Cuts a Swath Two Hundred Yards Wide and Kills Four Persons.

CINCINNATI, April 14.—A special dispatch to the Times-Star to-day from Memphis says: The hurricane on Tuesday in Mississippi crossed the Mississippi river at Commerce and proceeded eastwardly to Hernando. It made a path two hundred yards wide, laying waste houses, forests bridges and fences. A large number of negro cabins, full of their occupants, were blown down, without a single case of injury to the inmates. The storm is known to have killed four persons. Four others are missing and are supposed to have been killed or disabled by the tornado. Some persons were picked up and whirled several hundred yards through the air by it and then set down upon the ground uninjured.

A German tanner became insane in Pittsburg a few days ago at the notification that he had fallen heir to a fortune of $26,000.

In the whole History of Medicine

No preperation has ever performed such marvelous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long contained series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in throat and chest disorders, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and effects, physicians use the CHERRY PECTORAL extensively in their practice, and clergymen recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

STORES.

Having given the Gents' Department ample time to explain its good qualities, we will now turn our attention to the Ladies' Department, to which we are paying our utmost attention to have the most complete in Centre county. We do not like to include Philadelphia, but in most departments they cannot beat us.

Our Mr. Bauland has just returned from the East, having purchased the largest and finest stock of Dry Goods, for cash, ever brought to Bellefonte, which we will sell for cash at such low prices as to astonish the public.

As the amount of goods purchased for this Spring is so immense, it will be impossible this time to mention many specialities. We expect most of our goods will be here this week, and will try to have them ready for sale during this week.

We will have the largest, finest and cheapest stock of Dress Goods ever shown. We wish to inform you of a few bargains that will not be sold again for the money. These prices defy competition: 1 case of Cotton Beiges or Wash Poplins at 8 cts. per yard, which one of the Philadelphia houses is making such a fuss about, and their price is 10 cts 1 case of Atlantic Cashmeres at 12 cts. per yard, a big bargain in Philadelphia at 12½, but are cheap at 15 cents per yard. 1 lot of all-wool Cashmeres, black and colored, yard wide, at 40 cents per yard, cheap at 50 cts. per yard, and a great many other bargains too numerous to mention.

Our stock of Silks is complete. A full line of Plain and Fancy Silks from 50 cts per yard and upwards

Ladies, you can afford to waste a full day to look at our stock of Lawns, Madras-Ginghams, and choice Cambrics. We have about a ½ case of Madras-Ginghams at 13 cents per yard, which are selling in Philadelphia at 15 cts. per yard.

In Domestics we have everything that is manufactured, and as we buy these goods direct from the mills, we will sell them at jobber's prices. Call and examine for yourselves.

To Housekeepers we are a blessing as we are selling such goods for so little money that the expense of fitting up a house is a trifle. Just think, Linen Damask at 20 cts. per yard; all Linen Napkins at 65 cts. a doz; Towels 5 cts. each, and everything else in proportion.

Shoes, shoes, shoes, at such low prices that we will not mention any this time.

Now about Carpets, which is a very important thing to every one, we just have the prettiest stock ever shown, all new styles and all new prices. They are so cheap that we expect to have our stock sold in 30 days.

All the latest novelties in Gloves, Hosiery, Ribbons, Ties and Fancy Goods.

We added this Spring a new Department to our already immense stock which will please the Ladies. A full line of Muslin Underwear, especially manufactured for us, made in the best workmanship for less money than you can make them at home.

Our Notion and Small wear Departments are always complete.

Samples sent free on application, and special attention paid to mail orders.

It is our aim to supply the public with all their wants in our line, and any article not on hand, no matter how small a quantity is wanted, or how small the purchase is, we will procure it for them.

An early call is solicited.

Respectfully,

Bauland & Newman

THE NEW VICTOR.

SIMPLICITY SIMPLIFIED!

Improvements September, 1878.

Notwithstanding the VICTOR has long been the peer of any Sewing Machine in the market—a fact supported by a host of volunteer witnesses—we now confidently claim for it greater simplicity, a wonderful reduction of friction and a rare combination of desirable qualities. Its shuttle is a beautiful specimen of mechanism, and takes rank with the highest achievements of inventive genius. Note.—We do not lease or consign Machines, therefore, have no old ones to patch up and re-varnish for our customers.

We Sell New Machines Every Time.

Send for Illustrated Circular and prices. Liberal terms to the trade. Don't buy until you have seen the

The Millheim Journal.

THURSDAY, APRIL 21., '81.

DEININGER & BUMILLER,
Editors and Proprietors.

Local Department.

—Court commences next Monday.

—Scarlet fever is still raging in the vicinity of Pleasant Gap.

—Williamsport has a debt of $800,000 and is trying to evade payment.

—Hay sells at $26 a ton in Luzerne county. Better not keep a cow than pay such a price.

—Ex Gov. Curtin is to deliver the address at Monngahela City on Decoration Day.

—It is said that nearly every able bodied republican in Lancaster county is a candidate for some county office.

—Job printing—in the best style and at lowest prices—at the Journal office. Bring in your orders.

—The State College (Farmers' High School) is again without a president, Prof. Shortlidge having resigned.

—The election for County Superintendent will take place in the Court House, Bellefonte, Tuesday May 3rd.

—Millheim is soon to have another life insurance company. We have not learned who the officers are to be.

—A good second hand two horse wagon for sale cheap for cash or on short time. Inquire at the Journal office.

—The Evangelical brethren have built a new street crossing at their church. Brayo! the example deserves imitation.

—Several brand new sewing machines of the best standard makes, for sale at the Journal store, cheap for cash.

DON'T FORGET IT.—Bannell & Aikens will sell you an organ or piano as cheap as it can be gotten from any party in the state.

—Appetite, Flesh, Color, Strength and Vigor—if you covet these, take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which will confer them upon you in rapid succession.

FOR TENDER FEET.—The Journal store sells the celebrated Nelson Seamless Stocking, just the thing for tender feet. Call and see them.

—New Berlin is going to organize several new insurance companies. Well, the more the merrier, it seems—that is as long as it lasts.

—The Alexander brothers give notice that they have taken out letters testamentary on the estate of their father, Mr. Amos Alexander, deceased.

—Mifflinburg is to have a new rail road depot. Glad to hear it. The ruins of the old present an unsightly appearance as one passes the beautiful old burg.

—A fine lot of Family Bibles, Pocket Bibles, Presentation Bibles—at the Journal Store. We furnish Bibles with names stamped on the outside in gilt letters if desired.

—Centre is the largest county in the state, since the division of Luzerne having an area of 785,000 acres. Montour is the smallest and has only 89,600 acres.

—Our Associate has shaped a brand new wheel barrow, nicely painted and striped, and now gives notice most respectfully that he will neither borrow nor lend.

—Dr. John F. Harter, Dentist, has removed his office to the second floor of Tomlinson's grocery, where he will be happy to receive his personal and professional friends. tf —Have you planted your onions, sowed your lettuce, radishes, peas, etc? If not you better handle yourself a little lively for we write April 21st today.

—Mrs. Polly Royer, widow of Geo. W. Royer, near Rebersburg, will have public sale, Friday April 29th. Four good horses, several cows, and a full stock of farming implements will be sold.

—Mr. Jesse Kreamer and family, who left Millheim four years ago for Kansas, have again come "home" to stay. Glad to have them back but sorry that they did not make their fortune out there.

—Spring has come at last and we are now enjoying the nice, balmy days of this beautiful season. The Easter holidays were green according to the predictions of the weather prophets. Now for your garden-digging.

—The quoiting season was inaugurated here last Saturday. While looking on and listening to the ejaculatory terms "hobber" "ringer"—"out!" we came to the conclusion that it must be a very interesting amusement to those who like it well.

—Go to Stam's store with your produce, where you can do better than at any other store in the valley. I have just received choice syrup that you should try, at 14 cents per quart; white sugar at 10, brown at 8. Call and see for yourself. T. R. STAM.

—Astley's Royal English Menagerie and Circus will visit Bellefonte on Wednesday of next week, and another one we hear, is to arrive there week after next. There is a chance now for amusement seekers to see sights and get rid of their money.

—Gentlemens' furnishing goods of every possible price and grade, at the Philadelphia Branch Store, Bellefonte, Pa.

—Mr. John Keen, our next door neighbor is fixing up the barber shop, occupied by J. C. Springer in good style. Plasterers, painters and paper hangers are busy at work there and after it is done, it will be a pleasure to get a shave in the new room. If only more of our citizens would take such an improving spell.

—At Lewin's Philadelphia Branch Store, Bellefonte, you may always feel sure that you get the full worth of your money.

—If you want an extra fine article in the line of tooth powder—and every body should use such an article—Dr. John F. Harter is the man to supply you. We have tried it and know wherof we speak. tf

—The Perry County Freeman has the first snake story of the season. It runs thus: While husking corn that remained in the field all winter, a young man named Liddig, of Howe township, discovered seven snakes in one shock.

—We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Wm. R. Camp's furniture store at Centre Hall. We visited Mr. Camp's establishment last week and were surprised over his fine stock of furniture. His work is as good as any other while his prices are realy low. If you need anything in the furniture line you will do well to patronize Mr. Camp.

—The BROCKERHOFF HOUSE has changed proprietors, but has lost nothing by the change. Mr. McKeever, the new landlord, is a gentleman—every inch of him, and understands the hotel business thoroughly. He knows how to make a fellow feel at home. Stop at the Brockerhoff if you go to Bellefonte next week, and you will realize all we say. The charges are moderate.

LOOK TO YOUR INTEREST.—That magnificent establishment Bauland & Newman's Bee Hive Store, Bellefonte Pa., is just chock full of goods of every grade and price. Every one can be exactly suited, and at prices too that absolutely defy competion. If you go to Bellefonte do not fail to go and see the Bee Hive. They will treat you kindly, sell you very cheaply and send you away rejoicing. Just try it. 2t

A BUSY PLACE.—No matter on what particular day of the week, or at what hour of the day you enter Lewin's Philadelphia Branch Clothing Store, Bellefonte, Pa., they are always busy selling goods. Nor is it any wonder that they should be, for they sell everything at rock bottom prices, and are uniformly clever and obliging to rich and poor alike. There are the strong points that insure such large success in business.

—Our friend George Moyer, of Sugar Valley, gave us a call on Tuesday. He says there is much sickness over there now and that ten funerals have occurred in their neighborhood within a month. He also reports a sad accident which befel a four year old child of Mr. Harlacher, in Logansville. One of the female members of the family filled a bucket with boiling water and left the room momentarily, leaving the bucket stand on the floor. When she returned she found the door locked by the child. She gained entrance by another door and found the child in the bucket of hot water. It seems that the child walked backwards, hit the bucket, fell in and wedged so tightly that it could not extricate itself. Death soon ended its sufferings.

BAD FOR JIMMY.—The following which we copy from the Reporter, relates to one of our Millheim boys. We are sorry for Jim, but his case is just another proof that young men should shun like fire, bad company, bad principles and whiskey:

On Monday Constable Solt took Jim Zeigler to Bellefonte as a guest to Sheriff Spangler. It appears that on Friday Jim borrowed one of Mr. Benner's horses, without his knowledge or consent. He then borrowed a sulky of Jno. Odenkirk's upon the same arrangement and started for Mifflin county. At Potters Mills James was full of business and proposed to sell his rig; reaching Mifflin county he again meant biz and tried to dispose of the property, when Mr. Benner came on and headed him off. The horse, sulky and James were brought back here, James returning on foot, and on Monday he was taken on a warrant by the constable for thus going ahead of correct business principles.

It seems to be a vain effort on the part of newspapers to educate heedless people up to a knowledge that it is the eating of "raw" pork that kills the eater with trichinosis. Beware of "raw" pork or uncooked sausage, no matter what this purports to be. But we suppose the utter stupidity of committing suicide by eating raw meat will go on—step by step with the crazy conduct of feeding the kitchen fire with coal oil cans, and pointing guns and pistols because the lunatics who point them "don't know they are loaded." The newspapers have been sounding the notes of warning on all these modes of suicide and homicide for years; and, although some are taught reason, a great many fools continue to lose their lives every year, and there are more of the same sort left.—Ex.

ITEMS FROM CILDOM.

Galloway, Pa., April 15th '81.

At last, in spite of Vennor, it seems that spring has come and

Cleaning time is near at hand,
When the voice of the busy housewife
Will be heard throughout the land,
And the hubby 'll be weary of life.

There was a rather comical wedding here a short time ago, when a very young man took unto himself a wife pretty well stricken in years, but as love is said to be blind, he it seems, thought her a young miss, when in fact, she was a widow—and his surprise can be better imagined than told when a little three year old was bidden by its mother to go and kiss her new grand-papa. He finds it to be rather a solemn affair to be the father of half a dozen children, one of whom is married and the mother of the little thing already mentioned. Surely they will have enough to begin house-keeping with.

Yesterday afternoon a boiler at one of the drilling wells here exploded, and two men were injured, one of whom got his arm broken, and it is not known yet how badly the other is hurt. It is very strange, but not a vestige of anything that was there remains, no not even any shattered bits of the boiler can be found in the vicinity—and the wonder is where everything has gone to.

On Tuesday a well was torpedoed, that is, a torpedo was put down, but as it did not go off another smaller one was put down, as it was thought that when it would explode the first one would do likewise—but behold! it failed and four more were put in, after which there was an explosion, but so slight that it is thought only one of the smaller ones went off, and they resumed work upon the well, and no doubt, some time when the men are least expecting it, away it will go, and most likely create or cause the saddest disaster unless the noise is heard in time to prevent danger. It is supposed that the torpedoes went into a niche or some place in such a way that the weight, which is used to explode them did not touch them when thrown down.

Easter Sunday is almost here, when no doubt egotism will be the prevailing epidemic throughout the "Land of the free and the home of the brave."

One young man in our vicinity had the disease so badly last year, that he prescribed for himself three dozen of eggs for breakfast—and how many more he felt he needed during the day, to cure him, we know not; but he got perfectly well it seemed, until a week or so since he began to manifest the same symptoms again, which have been increasing so rapidly, that it is to be supposed the crisis will be reached on Sabbath.

There will be services in most of our churches to-day. Voila tout.

PETE ROLEUM.

News Miscellany.

DOES ANYBODY KNOW what is Syggignocism? It is this: If two men approach a store and one commands the other to enter and boldly abstract therefrom sundry valuable articles, and the command is obeyed, that is not theft, but Syggignocism. It is a supplementary defense to kleptomania and emotional insanity, for it is alleged that the man who gives the directions cannot be punished, for he has stolen nothing, while the man who does the abstracting is the victim of Syggignocism.

The wonderful changes of fortune have rarely been more forcibly illustrated than in the case of Alonzo J. Ransier, of South Carolina. Ransier is now employed on the streets of Charleston as a common laborer. A few years ago he was wealthy and a member of Congress. He had been Lieutenant Governor of South Carolina, a member of the convention to revise the Constitution, chairman of the Republican State committee and a Presidential elector in the first Grant campaign. It is very much to his credit that he is willing to earn his own living.

The Philadelphia Record says "the fault of common school direction in this state for years past has been that it has overshot the mark. Instead of furnishing an excellent elementary education, something beyond is aimed at and the result, as a whole, is neither excellent nor superexcellent. If Dr. Higbee will bring the common school system back to the primal intention of teaching the children of the State an effectual course of reading, writing and arithmetic, he will do well. The rest may be safely left to private hands, where it certainly belongs."

WHIPPED BY A SNAKE.

Remarkable Cause of a Runaway in Schuylkill County.

From the Pottsville Miners' Journal.

A terrific runaway of a horse attached to a spring wagon and driven by a man named James Coons occurred on the turnpike, near Mine Hill Gap, yesterday. The horse, generally a well-disposed animal, was jogging along quietly, when one of his fore feet grazed a black snake which was crossing the road. The snake at once reared its head and sank its fangs into the horse's leg, above the knee, at the same time coiling itself around the limb. The horse snorted with terror and dashed off at a terrific pace. The driver was almost thrown from his seat, but managed to retain it and held a firm grip on the reins. The road was rough and the wagon was thrown first to one side and then to the other of the thoroughfare, as the maddened horse tried to shake off the snake in its wild race. The snake clung to his hold, but the race was brought to a sudden termination by a sharp curve in the road. The driver was unable to make the turn and horse and wagon dashed into a brush fence. The driver was thrown over the fence, but fortunately alighted in safety on his feet. The horse made desperate efforts to extricate itself and showed such extreme terror that Coons concluded something uncommon must have caused his fright and subsequent runaway. Catching the horse by the bridle he endeavored to calm the animal. While engaged in the task he noticed the snake which was still coiled around the animal's leg. Suddenly catching the reptile by the tail he pulled with all his strength. The tip of the tail came off in his grasp and the snake at once uncoiled and fell to the ground. The horse was finally extricated from his unpleasant position and securely tied until he had become somewhat quiet. The snake was killed. It measured four feet six inches in length.

RAFTING ON THE RIVER.

The Flood Brings the Rafts Down in Numbers.

The recent rains have brought the river up to a good rafting stage, and all day yesterday the immense timber flotillas passed this city in rapid succession. About noon four new canal boats built at Lewisburg floated by. Up in the northern counties the lumbermen have been anxiously awaiting this rise in the river for some time, and it has proved to them the flood that leads on to fortune.

A large quantity of timber has been already run into the lower market, but there are millions of feet in the upper waters of the river, which could not be moved until a sufficient stage of water was reached to float the rafts. Although the deep snow in the woods up in the lumber districts interfered somewhat with the operations of "logging" for nearly two months, there was a larger amount of pine and hemlock cut the past season than during any previous winter, but it is said the demand at Lock Haven, Williamsport, Marietta and other points where booms are erected, is fairly up to the supply, and the prices are good. The hardy lumbermen will now reap the reward of their weary toil in the forests which are being so rapidly cleared of giant timber trees.—Patriot.

The Watsontown Record says: "Report states that a lady resident of White Deer twp., Union county, died last week from the effects of over eating."

Sunbury is well supplied with burgesses. They have a chief burgess, a second burgess, and four assistant burgesses. The five extra ones are to assist the chief to do nothing.

"If You Take Another Step."

NEW ORLEANS, April 14.—A special from Little Rock, Arkansas, says: A fatal shooting affray has occurred at Carlisle, Arkansas. William Allison and William McBryde quarreled about a hoe. The former threatened to whip the latter and advanced in a menacing manner. McBryde stepped to a pile of rails, where his shot-gun had been placed, and taking it up, said: "If you take another step I will shoot you." Allison advanced and McBryde fired, the charge lodging in Allison's breast, killing him almost instantly. The murderer was arrested.

A Gun in a Blacksmith's Forge.

WATERTOWN, Ont., April 14.—Today a farmer named Alexander Jones, took an old gun to a blacksmith for repairs. He assured the blacksmith that the gun was not loaded. The barrel was placed in the forge, whereupon the gun exploded, the charge lodging in the bowels of Jones and killing him instantly.

Murdered in Jail.

CLEARFIELD, Pa., April 9.—Geo. Evans, under conviction of voluntary manslaughter for killing a Swede named Hogansen, and seriously wounding another named Bergstrom, at Houtzdale, in June, 1880, last evening stabbed and killed Edwin Goodwin, a fellow-prisoner, charged with larceny, in jail at this place. Evans is a young man and a desperate character.

TO ADVERTISERS.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S
SELECT LIST OF LOCAL NEWSPAPERS.

An advertiser who spends upwards of $5,000 a year, and who invested less than $350 of it in this List, writes: "Your Select Local List paid me better last year THAN ALL THE OTHER ADVERTISING I DID."

IT IS NOT A CO-OPERATIVE LIST
IT IS NOT A CHEAP LIST.
IT IS AN HONEST LIST.

The catalogue states exactly what the papers are. When the name of a paper is printed in FULL FACE TYPE it is in every instance the BEST. When printed in CAPITALS, it is the ONLY paper in the place. The list gives the population of every town and the circulation of every paper.

The rates charged for advertising are barely one-fifth the publishers' schedule. The price for single States ranges from $2 to $30. The price for one inch one month in the entire list is $525. The regular rates of the papers for the same space and time are $3,989.14. The list includes 852 newspapers of which 17 are issued DAILY and 705 WEEKLY. AGRICULTURE.

FEEDING FOR EGGS.—Hens are the most valuable stock on the farm. They require little care, and yield large dividends. The writer has kept three horses, one cow, a brood of turkeys, and about 125 hens during the present winter, and he thinks the hens have paid the whole bill, without attempting to obtain the best retail prices. The eggs were sold at wholesale—the buyer making a profit of ten cents per dozen. Perhaps I may add a word which other writers omit. First, kill in the Fall nearly everything but early Spring pullets; these can be made to lay all Winter. The older the hen the fewer the eggs. Second, warm the food, for the first meal especially. Let there be a variety of food—buckwheat and wheat screenings are the best grains: corn and oats come next. The best animal food in my experience is a beef's head. They will consume everything except the eyes. It costs twenty five cents and will last a week. When they have eaten the outside meat crack it open for the brains: next split in two and with an axe pound up a portion of the bone daily Next stop and listen—hear them sing, and see them run for the nest. A beef's head is more profitable than lard scraps, as the latter has been pressed until the substance is nearly gone. Keep an iron pot near the kitchen into which order all the scraps from dinngroom. This usually goes to the pig; hereafter let it go to the Brahmas toward evening. Buy your pork if you think it is fit to eat.

BEST VARIETIES OF WHEAT.—At a recent meeting of millers in Cincinnati, the comparative value of the different kinds of wheat for flouring purposes was considered. It was found difficult to decide which should be declared best, on account of the modifying influences of climate and soil in a territory measured by 23 deg. of latitude and 57 deg. of longitude, an area of three and a quarter millions of square miles. It was declared that the same varieties growing in different States differ materially in milling value; that the Fife of Northern Minnesota and Dakota is far superior to the same kind grown in Lower Illinois and Wisconsin; that the Rappahannock of Virginia, Georgia and Tennessee, is much richer in gluten than the same grown north of the Ohio River.

Still the comittee venture to recommend for milling purposess the following winter varieties: "Longberry Amber," Lancaster, Indiana Red, Alabama Orange, Velvet Chaff, Rappahannock and Jennings. The first two are preferred, being rich in gluten and valuable for shipping to warm climates. The third is also very glutinous, as is the Alabama, a variety that yields poorly in the harvest. The Jennings is whole and hard, making flour of good color and strength. The Orange makes a family flour of fair strength, with small proportion of offal. The Rappahannock is variable, not very rich, yielding a good family flour but is easily damaged by moisture. The Velvet Chaff is early, has a stiff straw, well adapted to rich soils, yields fairly in milling a product of good strength. Clawson and Fultz, both of which are varieties popular with growers on account of their large yield, are unpopular with millers, who declare them soft and weak, with little gluten.

POTATOES.—A Kansas farmer says he raised some of the finest peach blow potatoes he ever saw in the following manner. In the latter part of May I drove my two horses and plough to the patch of ground I wished to plant and commenced ploughing around it. My boy followed, dropping potatoes, one in a place, every fifteen inches and in every other furrow. I turned a light furrow on them, and when done I covered the whole patch with straw to the depth of three inches. They needed no cultivation, and in August, when we were having our dry spell, the potato vines in fields planted in the ordinary way were drying up and dying, these potato tops of mine were growing vigorously, completely covering the ground. I shall plant again in this way, but, in the event of a wet season, I think the potatoes will be watery. It will be a good plan to plant both ways.

DURING the dead of winter any living plant which looks green adds to the cheerfulness of a room, and a mass of beautiful verdure is obtained by the following expedient: Take about twenty or thirty ears of wheat and tie them together, leaving the straw about two inches long. Hang them up for a few days, keeping them sprinkled with water; the top will soon become a pyramid of verdure, and will retain its beauty for several weeks. This simple plan may be put in practice at any time in the winter months.

A farm cart, which, with good usage, would last almost a lifetime, will last only a few years when exposed to the weather.

Not the least promising applications of the new luminous paint is found in the production of a safety lamp for coal miners. It is said to give light enough for practical use, and, as it contains no fire, or heat, it is evident that its use is absolutely free from risk. By means of this form of lamp, in connection with blasting by compressed air, fire and the attendant danger of exploding gas might be ruled out, and the most dangerous mines be made quite safe.

Herr Bergel, of Berlin, has bought out a curious device by means of which pictures of various kinds are burnt out on a piece of ordinary-looking rose-colored paper. A glowing match is applied at two finely-perforated points, and the sparks communicated then begin gradually to move over the paper, tracing out the picture. Neither leaves its proper path or injures the paper beyond, and when the end of the path is reached the spark goes out.

An easy method for showing whether butter is adulterated with beef fat has been submitted by Hager. He saturates a cotton wick with a suspected sample, which is first melted. He then lights the wick and permits it to burn for about two minutes. At the end of that time, when the wick is extinguished, an odor like that given off by a tallow candle, when its flame is blown out, is readily perceived if the butter is artificial.

The experiment of irrigating lands in the neighborhood of Paris with water from the sewers is said to be working successfully. Sterile tracts of land have been converted into fertile plains while no increase of sickness among the inhabitants has followed, as was apprehended.

A great telescope lens, nearly twenty-nine inches in diameter, is being finished for the Paris Observatory.

DOMESTIC.

CURE FOR DIPHTHERIA.—Diphtheria is becoming a dreadful scourge and the writer of what is here said, saw the working of this cure in the hands of an English physician at a time when the disease was prevalent in an English town. Speaking of the physician's application, the writer says: "All he took with him was powder of sulphur and a quill, and with these he cured every case without exception. He put a spoonful of flour of brimstone into a wineglass of water, and stirred it with his finger instead of a spoon, as the sulphur does not readily amalgamate with water. When the sulphur was well mixed he gave it as a gargle, and in ten minutes the patient was out of danger. Brimstone kills every form of fungus in man, beast or plant in a few minutes. Instead of spitting out the gargle he recommends the swallowing of it. In extreme cases in which he had been called just in the nick of time, when the fungus was too nearly closed to allow the gargle, he blew the sulphur through a quill into the throat, and after the fungus had shrunk to allow of it, applied the gargle. He never lost a patient from diphtheria. If a patient cannot gargle, take a live coal, put it into a shovel and sprinkle a spoonful of flour of brimstone at a time upon it, let the sufferer inhale it, holding the head over it, and the fungus will die. If plentifully used, the whole room, may be filled almost to suffocation, the patient can walk about in it, inhaling the fumes with the doors and windows shut. The plan of fumigating a room with sulphur has often cured most violent attacks of cold in the head and chest."

ONE secret of making short crust light is to roll it only once, and to handle it as little as possible. Superior pastry will be improved by the addition of the yolk of an egg and two or three drops of lemon juice. It is generally understood that, for the best crust, equal quantities of butter and flour should be taken; but very excellent pastry indeed may be made with half the weight of butter to that of flour, and good plain pastry may be made with six ounces of butter or clarified dripping and a teaspoonful of baking powder to one pound of flour. For meat pies it is really undesirable that a large portion of butter should be used.

MOCK GINGER PRESERVE.—Cut into strips the thick rind of a watermelon, trim off the green and cut out the inside until the rind is firm; cover with water, into which throw enough soda to make the water taste of it; let stand from twelve to twenty-four hours; take out, boil in clear water until a straw will go easily through; drain; put into syrup made of good brown sugar, very strongly flavored with pounded ginger; let boil slowly until the syrup penetrates the rind. This is almost as good as ginger preserve.

STEWED BEETS.—Wash two or three large beets without breaking the skin or removing topstalks or roots; boil them an hour in boiling water and salt; then peel and slice them and stew them an hour in the following sauce: Mix together in a saucepan over the fire one tables poonful each of butter, flour and vinegar; gradually stir in a pint of boiling water; season the sauce with a saltspoonful of salt and a quarter of a saltspoonful of pepper.

SCOTCH COOKIES.—Beat two cups of sugar with one cup of butter and five tablespoonfuls of milk in which has been disselved one teaspoonful of soda. Beat two eggs quite white and add them. Mix two teaspoonfuls cream tartar with half a pound of flour and a teaspoonful of powdered cinnamon. Mix the whole together, adding more flour from time to time to make a dough. Roll thin and bake quickly.

To wash a fine cambric handkerchief, embroidered in colored silks, so that the colors do not run, the secret is to wash in a soap lather very quickly, wring thoroughly and then iron, so that it dries at once. There should be no soaking, and the embroidered corner should be kept out of the water as much as possible. A little alum in the water will make the process more sure.

ALWAYS have in the house a bottle of alcohol for use in case the gas pipes become frozen. A portion of the alcohol poured in the top-cock opening in the main supply pipe will enable you to have gas light, whereas you may be obliged to spend an entire evening, as Mosses did when the light went out in the dark.

LEMON PIE.—For a good sized pie take one large lemon; grate the rind and add the juice to one and one-quarter cups of brown sugar. Beat the yolks of four eggs with a pinch of salt; add to the above, which requires only one crust. When baked, beat the whites of four eggs to a stiff froth with a little white sugar spread and dry in the oven.

Professor Fleeming Jenkin has stated that the following are the main conditions to be fulfilled in putting a house into good sanitary order: 1. The liquid refuse from the house must have a free passage to the town sewer. 2. The air from the town sewer must not have a free passage into the house drain. 3 No air or gas from the drainage channels of the house must enter the house. 4. No water or liquids must leak from those channels into the ground under the house. 5. The drinking water must be stored in such a manner as to run no risk of contamination. 6. The air of the dwelling rooms must be supplied without contamination.

Professsr Tyndall says that "burning" of zinc is to be regarded as one of the most serious drawbacks to the general use of the electric light. Zinc, it is known, may be burnt in air—that is, oxidized; it may also be burnt or oxidized in acidulated water, but it has to displace the oxygen from the hydrogen for this to occur, and four-fifths of the heat is used up in this process. Thus it is that when zinc is thus burnt only the remaining one-fifth is available for the purpose intended. The rate of the burning makes no difference—one ounce of zinc, for example, always gives out the same amount of heat.

In 1669 Johannis Swammerdam wrote a treatise upon insects, in which he declared he could show all the parts of a butterfly in a caterpillar, and could make the change of the caterpiller proceed slowly, so that he could produce a creature half butterfly and half caterpiller. The experiment was performed in the presence of the duke of Tuscany.

HAPPINESS and prosperity are so indissolubly linked with good health, that all those suffering with Hoarseness, Cough, Colds, etc., should try Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and be cured. Price 25 cts.

HUMOROUS.

"GUILTY or not guilty?" asked the Galveston Recorder.

"Of course I'm not guilty."

"You went into this gentleman's room at the dead hour of night with a false key?"

"That's just so, but I am not to be blamed for the false of the key, am I?"

"No levity, sir. You found him fast asleep?"

"So I did, and I didn't wake him up, either. My family doctor says it's dangerous to waken a sleeping man."

"I suppose it is, particularly if he had a six-shooter handy. You took the sleeping man's pants and stole noiselessly down stairs and gave them to a confederate."

"That's all so, except I didn't steal down stairs."

"You mean you stole up stairs."

"No; I didn't steal at all."

"You are doing some tall lying now."

"And I didn't turn the pants over to a confederate, either. He was a Union man all during the war."

"You admit you took the pants?"

"Certainly, Judge; but if the truth has to be told, I'll give it to you. I went and got those pants merely to show to my friend, who wanted to take a pattern of them to have a pair built just like them. I was going to take them back I was interrupted by the police. Do you suppose if I was a stealing man I wouldn't be in official position?"

The case was taken under advisement.

[Springfield, (Mass.) Republican.]

Edgar T. Page, Esq., Druggist, writes us from Chicopee Falls, that Mr. Albert Guenther, under Wild's Hotel has used that remarkable remedy, St. Jacob's Oil, for a severe case of rheumatism and it relieved and cured him, as it by magic. He also used it with great success among his horses, in cases of sprains, sores, etc., and it cures every time.

THE other day a bright three-year-old boy, "who has been around some," was taken to church to be baptized and christened. Although the little fellow's parents are church people, they mingle much with the world and are quite regularly at the theater, where the little three-year-old always accompanies them. Being taken into church there was some delay before the ceremony was proceeded with, and the unregenerate youth becoming uneasy, cried out in a loud impatient tone, "Ma, why doesn't the curtain go up?"

IT was a little evening gathering. She was a delicate daisy of about forty summers and as many hard winters. They were eating fruit and she remarked as she delicately pared the peach: "The skin of a peach always sets my teeth on edge." Her little nephew who is sharp eared and sharp eyed, said, "Well, auntie why don't you take your teeth out and lay them on the window sill, like you did this morning?" Her appetite for fruit vanished. The boy will sit sideways on the bench when he goes to school next Monday.

"AH, dear," sighed Miss Fitzjoy, as she yawned wearily. "There isn't anything to occupy one's mind now. I've made toilet cushions and tidies, and embroidered slippers and painted majolica jugs until I'm weary of life. I believe I'll go down into the kitchen and watch Jane make bread. I suppose I ought to know how many pints of yeast it takes to make a loaf." And she penetrated the business part of the house only to find out that bread was "raised" from the baker's cart.

[Des Moines Iowa State Register.]

We notice the following in an exchange: Mr. G. B. Haverer, Foreman N. Y. & N. H. S. B. Co., suffered for eight days with terrible pain in the back, almost to distraction, until he heard of and used St. Jacob's Oil, one bottle of which cured him completely.

SMITH—"Say, Jones, let me ask you confidentially, why you associate with that fellow Tompkins? He is a fraud a beat and a scamp." Jones—"Is he? Why, that's just what he says of you." Smith—"Why, the infernal slanderer, I'll break every bone in his body!"

VEGETINE.

DR. CALLIER SURPRISED.

Vegetine Cured His Daughter!

CALLIERSVILLE, Chilton Co., Ala., May 15, 1878.

DEAR SIR.—My daughter has been afflicted with nasal catarrh, affection of the bladder and kidneys, and is of scrofulous diathesis, and, after having exhausted my skill and the most eminent physicians of Selma I at last resorted to the use of your Vegetine (without confidence) and, to my great surprise, my daughter has been restored to health. I write this as a simple act of justice, and not as an advertising medium.

Respectfully, T. E. CALLIER, M. D.

VEGETINE

Worked Like a Charm—Cured Salt Rheum and Erysipelas.

75 COURT ST., ROME, N. Y., July 10, 1879.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir.—One year ago last fall my little boy had a breaking out of Erysipelas and Salt Rheum, his face being one mattered sore, of the worst description. Noticing your advertisement in the papers, I purchased two bottles of the Vegetine, and with the two bottles my son was cured. I never saw anything like the Vegetine; it worked like a charm. I have been city watchman at Rome for years. This testimonial is gratuitous. Yours, respectfully,

HORATIO GRINDLEY.

Remarkable Cure of Scrofulous Face

WESTMINSTER, Conn., June 19, 1879.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir.—I can testify to the good effect of your medicine. My little boy had a Scrofula sore break out on his head as large as a quarter of a dollar, and it went down his face from one ear to the other, under his neck, and was one solid mass of sores. Two bottles of your valuable Vegetine completely cured him.

Very respectfully,

MRS. G. R. THATCHER.

To All Our Friends.

Having had numberless inquiries for advertising cards from ladies in all parts of the country who are interested in the prevailing fashion of making "Card Collections," we are having printed for them a set of seven beautiful cards, each in six colors and on a gold background, in the very highest degree of art, illustrating Shakspeare's "Seven Ages of Man," We have spared no expense in these cards—they are simply little art gems. Our only aim has been to publish the finest cards yet shown. Applications for them have come in so rapidly that nearly the whole edition is engaged before the receipt by us of the cards from the artist. We have therefore been obliged to adopt the following plan for the distribution of the remainder: No more of the gilt Shakspeare cards, seven in the series, will be sent excepting upon the receipt of a statement from a grocer that the person applying for the cards has bought of him on that day at least seven bars of Dobbins' Electric Soap, with price paid for same. All applying in this manner will receive the full set of seven cards gratis by mail. This will insure us that our friends and patrons get their share of these beautiful designs, although it in no manner repays us for the cost of the cards. Your grocer has the soap or will get it, and the purchase by you of seven bars of it at one time will secure for you gratis seven really beautiful cards. The soap improves with age, and is an article of necessity in your house every week. Therefore you are not asked to buy a useless article, but one that you must have anyway. Please send us your application at once, and tell your lady friends making "Card Collections," to do the same. Grocers do not have the cards to deliver. Buy the soap of them, send us their bill, and we will mail you the cards free. Yours respectfully, I. L. CRAGIN & Co., 116 South 4th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

P. S.—Ladies not wishing to buy soap can get the cards by remitting cost price, 25 cents.

THREE RECIPES TO CURE CORNS.—1. Bathe the corn with strong borax water: then shave it losely, but be careful not to make it bleed. Place over the corn a white felt corn plaster and wear it constantly until the corn has disappeared. Every night and morning wet the small cavity over the corn (and in the plaster) with a little borax water, or, if preferable, the pulp of a lemon. The corn plaster can be procured at any druggist's. 2. Keep the feet clean by frequent ablutions with warm water, and wear easy soft boots or shoes. Without the latter precaution, corns will generally return even after they appear to have been perfectly removed. 3. After soaking the feet in warm water for a few minutes, pare the corns as close as possible with a sharp knife, taking care not to make them bleed. Place upon the part affected, a small, circular piece of leather or buckskin, spread with some emolient plaster, and having a hole in the center corresponding to the size of the corns. They may now be touched with nitric acid, by means of a small glass rod or wood toothpick, due care being taken not to allow the liquid to come in contact with the neighboring parts. Repeat this process daily until the offender be sufficiently softened to admit of removal.

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all factory work gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them. They cost but a trifle. See another column.—Christian Record.

THE moment you observe signs in your child of unwonted weakness, fatigue, or physical debility, particularly if it is accompanied with a little fever. Make the child frequently open its mouth, so that you can observe its throat. It is in the throat that the lay observer will first discover any certain signs of diphtheria. Never mind how red or how much inflamed the throat appears. That does not indicate the disease. But the instant you see a white spot and detect a bad odor, run for a doctor. The white spot will appear, and eventually they will run together in great blotches if the disease is not checked. The time to seek medical assistance is before these spots run together.

The life of a submarine telegraph cable is shown by experience to be from ten to twelve years. If a cable breaks in deep water after it is ten years of age, it cannot be lifted for repairs as it will break of its own weight—a fatal difficulty, and for which there seems to be no practicable remedy.

There are many indications that in the present condition of applied science the time is not far distant when all our telegraph lines will be under ground, where they will least impair the beauty of our streets and be protected from adverse atmospheric influences.

A CHRISTIAN: "What are you doing there?" calmly asked an elderly and pious looking skater of a young man who had fallen on the ice and was rubbing his thigh with considerable energy. "Doing!" he exclaimed, pressing his jaws together to keep back a volley of profanity, "I'm trying to be a Christian."

LAND of the free: "You boast that your country is the land of liberty," said a young English nobleman, who had married an American lady, to a Yankee traveler at a London chop house. Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family. —A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

It will cure entirely the worst form of Female Complaints, all ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and the consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the Change of Life.

It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to cancerous humors there is checked very speedily by its use.

It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion.

That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.

It will at all times and under all circumstances act in harmony with the laws that govern the female system.

For the cure of Kidney Complaints of either sex this Compound is unsurpassed.
